Project Name:

Food Box Hero | Back End Developer | GH

Project Description:

FoodBox Hero is aimed to end the global epidemic of food waste while simultaneously helping those in need. Our app will matches restaurants, hotels, events, etc. that have leftover food, that can be shared with those that are less fortunate. Users have the ability to create an account, select the food in their area, and pick it up at the location provided, for free.

This application was built using: mySQL was used for the database; Express.js was used for the servers; Json was used for object orientation and was coded using Javascript & jQuery

Future improvements:

The site is currently under development however, upon completion we hope to have the database functional so that it can transfer data from the front to backend or vice versa, which will give users the ability to locate the restaurants in their areas for which food is available for pickup
